DIRECTOR'S REPORT

THE MUSEUM OF ART'S STRATEGIC PLAN HAS TWO MAIN INITIATIVES: AWARENESS AND ACCESS. SIGNIFICANT PROGRESS WAS MADE IN BOTH AREAS IN THE PAST YEAR.

SPECIAL EXHIBITIONS

Exhibitions are the most visible part of the museum's program frequently driving audiences and education programs. Outstanding among a lively and diverse schedule of exhibitions was "Collecting Modernism: European Masterworks from the Munson-Williams-Proctor Arts Institute." These twenty-four masterpieces by many of the principal innovators in the visual arts in the first quarter of the twentieth century were generously lent as a group by the Utica, New York museum for the first time. The exhibition was made possible by funds from the Arts Alive initiative.

There were four major exhibitions mounted, and four exhibition changes in the Brown Study Room. Major exhibitions were "MuZOOum: Zoo life in the Museum"; "Art in the 'Toon Age"; the 71st Annual Student Exhibition, "Reordering the Universe: Recent Acquisitions," and "Creatures of the Sky and Sea."

The Brown Study Room continues to be used to rotate selections from the museum's notable collection of works of art on paper: "The English Garden Revisited: Illustrations from Curtis's Botanical Magazine"; "Masters of American Watercolor; European Modernist Printed Pictures", "The Passion of Christ: Twelve Paintings by Jules-Claude Zeigler," from the collection of John and Janice Fisher was an unusual opportunity to see a complete decorative program by an important 19th century French muralist.

THE COLLECTION

The Ancient and Asian Gallery was reinstalled to emphasize several recent acquisitions of Chinese sculpture including a Qi Dynasty Bodhisattva, and to allow a linear presentation of the growing collection of Chinese ceramics. Bay V in the North Gallery was reinstalled to make a stronger presentation of American art 1800 to 1900 and include two important still lifes by Raphaelle Peale, lent to the museum by the Virginia Ball Estate. The East Gallery, presenting European paintings and sculptures from 1700 through 1850, now has a significant representation of English paintings as well as Italian, French, and German work.

ACQUISITIONS

The museum's collection continues to evolve through gifts and purchases in virtually every area of the museum interest. In honor of museum patron David T. Owsley, who received an honorary degree in 2005, the museum acquired a rare Chola period Festival Bronze Group of Shiva and Parvati, made about 1000 CE, the first

Indian bronze to enter the collection. Among other important purchases was Roger Brown's 1992 painting Beaters, Burglars, and Burners, the capstone on a collection of paintings and works on paper by the Chicago Imagists that were assembled by the museum in the early 1970s.

Gifts of works of art to the museum made in FYE 2006 included important works of art from David T. Owsley (Hiram Powers' 1868 Proserpine); the family of the late Norman Bluhm (Norman Bluhm, Chandelle, 1966); and Tom and Marcia French (ancient Chinese works of art). Ned, and Gloria Griner presented a collection of thirty-four American Scene prints they assembled to dovetail with the existing collection of American prints.

CONSERVATION

We have completed conservation on a number of paintings, including Frank Tenny Johnson's High in the Sierras, Nikolai Kuznetsov's Arbiter of Peace, and Perle Fine's Impact. These were cleaned and stabilized at the Intermuseum Conservation Association, Cleveland. Sanford Gifford's Twilight Sketch, Venice and Domenico Puligo's Portrait of a Lady were cleaned at the Indianapolis Museum of Art. Still in treatment is a recently acquired Black figure Lekythos, made in Athens, Fifth century BCE.

Conservators from the Intermuseum Conservation Association completed a survey of current installations, making recommendations for the removal of certain kinds of works of art, and the improvement of conditions of exhibition for others. Three-dimensional works needing treatment were surveyed, and treatment proposals written and priorities established.

There is a backlog of works of art on paper in need of conservation treatments, mats, and improved storage conditions. Starr Siegle was identified as the consultant to review the collection, probably in summer 2006, to recommend collecting priorities, interim conservation measures. Several frames were improved for important works on paper (notably two watercolors by Winslow Homer) and a program of acquiring gilt frames for old master prints was undertaken.

DIRECTOR'S REPORT

ADMINISTRATIVE

Successful application, award, and completion from the Enhanced Provost's Initiative for DIDO (Digital Imagery Delivered Online) on time and within budget, exceeding goals set for the pilot. For the same project, we applied to the Institute for Museum and Library Services in November 2005.

Nancy Huth, Assistant Director/Curator of Education left the museum after eighteen years to accept a position at The Walters Art Museum, Baltimore. We successfully concluded a national search hiring Tania Said as Curator of Education in November 2005.

OUTREACH

The museum's newly designed web site in the Vignette format went live in July 2005. The total number of hits July 06 through April 06 was 485,024. The museum is now listed on the University's home page. The museum has continued to utilize large-scale banners outside the museum on Riverside Avenue, and inside the Riverside Foyer, to announce exhibition changes. The newsletter, ARTwords, continues to evolve to a more user-friendly format, and printed ephemera are maintained on very high qualities levels of design and production. Announcements are sent to all faculty, and selected staff of the university.

EDUCATORS' OPEN HOUSE

With the other museums in Delaware County, the art museum hosted educators at an evening open house to encourage partnerships with the regional public schools. This was generously funded in part by the Ball Brothers Foundation special projects fund, and the George and Frances Ball Foundation. This event was on March 17, 2006.

There was a significant increase in visits to the museum website after that date. Average daily hits on the Museum's website January 1 through March 17, 2006 were 1702. Average daily hits on the Museum's website March 18 through April 26, 2006 were 2488.

EVENTS AND EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS

Educational programs at the Ball State University Museum of Art comprise of tours, public programs, special events, and published material.

Group visits experienced a significant increase with the number of students, at the school and college level growing 10% from 2005 to 2006 resulting in 3,827 students' educational needs served.

New programs were instituted such as Art High at Noon, a brief drop-in tour program comparing two related works of art; Expert Art, in which non-art experts use the collection as inspiration for a related topic, First Person, a unique opportunity to hear first hand from professionals involved in the development of the exhibitions, and Reel Time, a film program emphasizing art and artists.

The Educators' Evening Open House and Museum Showcase connected Muncie museums to nearly 200 teachers, professors, administrators, and community advocates, and resulted in a continuing partnership between the four museums featured.

The Museum of Art's first full color Family Guide has been well received by intergenerational groups with its viewing and label identification guides.

His experience in World War II as a fighter pilot changed the career direction for Chicago native Norman Bluhm from architecture to painting. The restless energy of abstract expressionism suited him better than the strict geometries of the Bauhaus. Bluhm's paintings were consistently the largest, and most avant-garde in terms of composition and physicality of their execution. Most of the painters associated with the New York School maintained earlier cubist conventions of composition or surrealist imagery. Bluhm, however, literally threw himself into his paintings with gestures so large that here the large canvas can barely contain them.

Chandelle is aptly named after the aeronautical maneuver that is climbing to a higher altitude by means of a banking turn. — Peter F. Blume

The gleaming white of the Carrara marble that Hiram Powers chose to sculpt Proserpine reminds us of the world of light. Yet, legend tells us that the goddess had to spend half her year in utter darkness after she was abducted by Pluto to the infernal regions to become his bride. Her fate is reflected in the seasons, and in the sculpture she appears out of the acanthus leaves (emblematic of immortality) like a fragile spring flower. Her delicate sexuality is suggested by her diaphanous breasts that are uncovered but appear veiled. The modesty of her expression charmed even the Puritan sensibility of Nathaniel Hawthorne, on a visit to the artist's studio in Florence in 1858, who praised "the bust of Proserpine" as among his "ideal statues." — Dr. Frank A. Felsenstein

This etching represents the changing role of women and changes in the way Americans eat. Around 1900, a man could walk into any tavern, order a drink or two, and receive a free lunch denied working women. Then diners and snack bars started to provide food for both women and men on the go. Here, two women seem focused on their meals and inner thoughts. Twentieth-century American women fought to obtain greater equality of opportunity, earning the vote in 1920 and more diverse employment options after that. Simultaneously, women and men both found it increasingly convenient to eat fast food, despite possible nutritional deficiencies. – Dr. Abel A. Alves

ENDOWED FUNDS

The Ball State University Museum of Art is grateful to those groups and individuals who have established endowments that support educational programs, acquisitions, and general operating expenses. For more information on planned giving or to establish a fund in your name, contact Ball State University Foundation at (765) 285-8312.

MARGARET BALL PETTY MEMORIAL FUND

The Margaret Ball Petty Memorial Fund supports educational programs, with an emphasis on those benefiting the Muncie-area community, as well as educational equipment and materials. The endowment also funds the acquisition of works of art for the museum's collection.

EDMUND F. PETTY MEMORIAL LECTURE FUND

Established with funds from the Margaret Ball Petty Foundation, the Ball Brothers Foundation, and the Petty family, the Edmund F. Petty Memorial Lecture Fund supports the educational mission of the museum by bringing an artist or art historian to the Ball State University campus to serve as a visiting lecturer.

LUCY BALL OWSLEY FUND

The Lucy Ball Owsley Fund was established by Ball Corporation and private individuals in memory of Lucy Ball Owsley, daughter of Frank Clayton Ball, one of the five brothers who founded Ball Corporation and donated the land and buildings that became Ball State University. The fund helps finance acquisitions, conservation activities, educational programs, and equipment purchases.

ART ALLIANCE FUND

This fund was established by the Museum of Art Alliance to supplement current needs of the museum and to fund acquisitions to the collection.

JOHN AND JANICE FISHER GLASS ENDOWMENT FUND

The Glass Endowment was funded by John and Janice Fisher and supports future glass acquisitions.

EDUCATIONAL PROJECTS FUND

Established by an anonymous donor to further the educational mission of the museum, this fund provides a cash award to a student or individual who develops educational materials based on the museum's collections that help a part of the museum's audience forge meaningful connections with the collection.

CLASS OF 1935 ENDOWMENT FUND

Graduates of the Class of 1935 established this fund in recognition of the 50th anniversary of the Ball State University Art Gallery (Museum of Art) and the Fine Arts Building. Funds are used to supplement the current needs of the museum, over and above normal operating and maintenance expenses.

MUSEUM OF ART ENDOWMENT FUND
