

Vecchiolli Morris (she/her) is from Muncie, IN where she is currently finishing out her fourth year of BFA Acting at Ball State University. During her time at Ball State she has experienced multiple acting techniques that continuously challenge her to grow and explore through voice, movement, and the psychophysiological. Vecchiolli has developed a passion for creating safe spaces for discovery that unlocks curiosity, wonder, and empathy for all.

Throughout Vecchiolli's training she has discovered the importance of the relationship between storyteller and the viewer. This is accomplished in both individual and ensemble work that allows her to create and share stories that audiences can empathize with others.

Vecchioll feels connected to a creative world in which she can collaborate with others to explore and discover what it means to be vulnerable to feel, to desire, to love, and to ultimately be human.
